BIO

Stuart Clark is a Partner at iFLG. After graduating in law, he qualified as a barrister. In 2012, he cross-qualified as a solicitor.

Stuart has a wide breadth of experience in all issues arising from the breakdown of a relationship and children but particularly specialises in financial and forum matters.

His work involves complicated trust and partnership issues when often quick advice needs to be obtained from a specialist lawyer in another jurisdiction to run concurrently to his cases in hand. He is a formidable expert on legal procedure.

Stuart has excellent advocacy skills and he has represented many clients at County and High Court level. He has represented clients on ex parte applications in the High Court and at the Central Family Court in London and in various regional courts.

Stuart is a member of the Central Court's court users' group.

He has written for numerous legal journals and published family law opinion pieces and has also appeared on TV and podcasts.

Stuart is noted as a 'stand out individual' in the 'Next generation Partners' list in Legal 500 2020 Legal 500.
